Toad woke up.
“Drat!” he said.
“This house is a mess. I have so much work to do.”
Frog looked through the window.
“Toad, you are right,” said Frog. “It is a mess.”
Toad pulled the covers over his head.
“I will do it tomorrow,” said Toad. “Today I will take life easy.”
Frog came into the house. “Toad,” said Frog, “your pants and jacket are lying on the floor.” “Tomorrow,” said Toad from under the covers. “Your kitchen sink is filled with dirty dishes,” said Frog.
“Tomorrow,” said Toad.
“There is dust on your chairs.”
“Tomorrow,” said Toad.
“Your windows need scrubbing,” said Frog.
“Your plants need watering.”
“Tomorrow!” cried Toad.
“I will do it all tomorrow!”
“I am thinking about tomorrow,” said Toad. “I am thinking about all of the many things that I will have to do.”
“Yes,” said Frog, “tomorrow will be a very hard day for you.”
“But Frog,” said Toad, “if I pick up my pants and jacket right now, then I will not have to pick them up tomorrow, will I?” “No,” said Frog. “You will not have to.”
Toad picked up his clothes. He put them in the closet.

“Frog,” said Toad, “if I wash my dishes right now, then I will not have to wash them tomorrow, will I?”
“No,” said Frog.
“You will not have to.”
Toad washed and dried his dishes. He put them in the cupboard.

“Frog,” said Toad, “if I dust my chairs and scrub my windows and water my plants right now, then
I will not have to do it tomorrow, will I?” “No,” said Frog. “You will not have to do any of it.”
Toad dusted his chairs.

He scrubbed his windows.
He watered his plants.
“There,” said Toad.
“Now I feel better.
I am not in the dumps anymore.”
“Why?” asked Frog.
“Because I have done all that work,” said Toad. “Now I can save tomorrow for something that I really want to do.”
“What is that?” asked Frog. “Tomorrow,” said Toad, “I can just take life easy.” Toad went back to bed. He pulled the covers over his head and fell asleep.
Frog and Toad went out to fly a kite. They went to a large meadow where the wind was strong.
“Our kite will fly up and up,” said Frog. “It will fly all the way up to the top of the sky.”
“Toad,” said Frog, “I will hold the ball of string. You hold the kite and run.”

Toad ran across the meadow.

He ran as fast as his short legs could carry him.
The kite went up in the air.
It fell to the ground with a bump.
Toad heard laughter.
Three robins were sitting in a bush.

“That kite will not fly,” said the robins.
“You may as well give up.”
Toad ran back to Frog.
“Frog,” said Toad, “this kite will not fly. I give up.”
“We must make a second try,” said Frog. “Wave the kite over your head. Perhaps that will make it fly.”
Toad ran back across the meadow. He waved the kite over his head. The kite went up in the air and then fell down with a thud. “What a joke!” said the robins. “That kite will never get off the ground.”
Toad ran back to Frog.
“This kite is a joke,” he said.
“It will never get off the ground.”
“We have to make a third try,” said Frog.
“Wave the kite over your head and jump up and down.
Perhaps that will make it fly.”
Toad ran across the meadow again. He waved the kite over his head. He jumped up and down. The kite went up in the air and crashed down into the grass. “That kite is junk,” said the robins. “Throw it away and go home.”
Toad ran back to Frog.
“This kite is junk,” he said.
“I think we should throw it away and go home.”
“Toad,” said Frog, “we need one more try.
Wave the kite over your head. Jump up and down and shout UP KITE UP.”
Toad ran across the meadow.
He waved the kite over his head.
He jumped up and down.
He shouted, “UP KITE UP!”
The kite flew into the air.
It climbed higher and higher.
“We did it!” cried Toad.
“Yes,” said Frog.
“If a running try did not work, and a running and waving try did not work, and a running, waving, and jumping try did not work, I knew that a running, waving, jumping, and shouting try just had to work.”
The robins flew out of the bush.
But they could not fly as high as the kite.
Frog and Toad sat and watched their kite.
It seemed to be flying way up at the top of the sky.
The night was cold and dark.
“Listen to the wind howling in the trees,” said Frog.
“What a fine time for a ghost story.”
Toad moved deeper into his chair.
“Toad,” asked Frog, “don’t you like to be scared? Don’t you like to feel the shivers?”
“I am not too sure,” said Toad.
Frog made a fresh pot of tea.
He sat down and began a story.
“When I was small,” said Frog, “my mother and father and I went out for a picnic. On the way home we lost our way. My mother was worried. ‘We must get home,’ she said. ‘We do not want to meet the Old Dark Frog.’ ‘Who is that?’ I asked. ‘A terrible ghost,’ said my father. ‘He comes out at night and eats little frog children for supper.’”
Toad sipped his tea.
“Frog,” he asked, “are you making this up?”
“Maybe yes and maybe no,” said Frog.

“My mother and father went to search for a path,” said Frog.
“They told me to wait until they came back.
I sat under a tree and waited.
The woods became dark.
I was afraid.
Then I saw two huge eyes.
It was the Old Dark Frog.
He was standing near me.”
“Frog,” asked Toad, “did this really happen?”
“Maybe it did and maybe it didn’t,” said Frog.

Frog went on with the story.
“The Dark Frog pulled a jump rope out of his pocket.
‘I am not hungry now,’ said the Dark Frog.
‘I have eaten too many tasty frog children.
But after I jump rope one hundred times, I will be hungry again.
Then I will eat YOU!’”
“The Dark Frog tied one end of the rope to a tree. ‘Turn for me!’ he shouted.
I turned the rope for the Dark Frog.
He jumped twenty times.
‘I am beginning to get hungry,’ said the Dark Frog.
He jumped fifty times.
‘I am getting hungrier,’ said the Dark Frog.
He jumped ninety times.
‘I am very hungry now!’ said the Dark Frog.”
“What happened then?” asked Toad.
“I had to save my life,” said Frog.
“I ran around and around the tree with the rope. I tied up the Old Dark Frog. He roared and screamed.”
I ran away fast.”
“I found my mother and father,” said Frog.
“We came safely home.”

“Frog,” asked Toad, “was that a true story?”
“Maybe it was and maybe it wasn’t,” said Frog.
Frog and Toad sat close by the fire.
They were scared.
The teacups shook in their hands.
They were having the shivers.
It was a good, warm feeling.
On Toad’s birthday Frog gave him a hat. Toad was delighted. “Happy birthday,” said Frog. Toad put on the hat. It fell down over his eyes. “I am sorry,” said Frog. “That hat is much too big for you. I will give you something else.”
“No,” said Toad. “This hat is your present to me. I like it. I will wear it the way it is.”
Frog and Toad went for a walk.
Toad tripped over a rock.
He bumped into a tree.
He fell in a hole.
“Frog,” said Toad, “I can’t see anything.
I will not be able to wear your beautiful present.
This is a sad birthday for me.”
Frog and Toad were sad for a while. Then Frog said, “Toad, here is what you must do. Tonight when you go to bed you must think some very big thoughts. Those big thoughts will make your head grow larger. In the morning your new hat may fit.”
“What a good idea,” said Toad. That night when Toad went to bed he thought the biggest thoughts that he could think. Toad thought about giant sunflowers. He thought about tall oak trees. He thought about high mountains covered with snow.

Then Toad fell asleep.
Frog came into Toad’s house. He came in quietly.

Frog found the hat and took it to his house.
Frog poured some water on the hat. He put the hat in a warm place to dry. It began to shrink. That hat grew smaller and smaller.

Frog went back to Toad’s house. Toad was still fast asleep.
Frog put the hat back on the hook where he found it. When Toad woke up in the morning, he put the hat on his head.

It was just the right size. Toad ran to Frog’s house. “Frog, Frog!” he cried. “All those big thoughts have made my head much larger. Now I can wear your present!” Frog and Toad went for a walk. Toad did not trip over a rock. He did not bump into a tree. He did not fall in a hole.
It turned out to be a very pleasant day after Toad’s birthday.
Toad went to Frog’s house. He found a note on the door. The note said, “Dear Toad, I am not at home. I went out. I want to be alone.” “Alone?” said Toad. “Frog has me for a friend. Why does he want to be alone?”
Toad looked through the windows.
He looked in the garden.
He did not see Frog.
Toad went to the woods.
Frog was not there.
He went to the meadow.
Frog was not there.
Toad went down to the river.
There was Frog.
He was sitting on an island by himself.

“Poor Frog,” said Toad.
“He must be very sad.
I will cheer him up.”
Toad ran home.
He made sandwiches.
He made a pitcher of iced tea.
He put everything in a basket. Toad hurried back to the river.
“Frog,” he shouted, “it’s me. It’s your best friend, Toad!” Frog was too far away to hear.
Toad took off his jacket and waved it like a flag. Frog was too far away to see.
Toad shouted and waved, but it was no use.
Frog sat on the island.
He did not see or hear Toad.
A turtle swam by.
Toad climbed on the turtle’s back.
“Turtle,” said Toad, “carry me to the island.
Frog is there.
He wants to be alone.”
“If Frog wants to be alone,” said the turtle, “why don’t you leave him alone?”
“Maybe you are right,” said Toad. “Maybe Frog does not want to see me. Maybe he does not want me to be his friend anymore.”
“Yes, maybe,” said the turtle as he swam to the island.
“Frog!” cried Toad. “I am sorry for all the dumb things I do. I am sorry for all the silly things I say. Please be my friend again!” Toad slipped off the turtle. With a splash, he fell in the river.
Frog pulled Toad up onto the island. Toad looked in the basket. The sandwiches were wet. The pitcher of iced tea was empty.
“Our lunch is spoiled,” said Toad.
“I made it for you, Frog, so that you would be happy.”
“But Toad,” said Frog.
“I am happy. I am very happy. This morning when I woke up I felt good because the sun was shining.
I felt good because I was a frog. And I felt good because I have you for a friend. I wanted to be alone.
I wanted to think about how fine everything is.”
“Oh,” said Toad.
“I guess that is a very good reason for wanting to be alone.”
“Now,” said Frog, “I will be glad not to be alone. Let’s eat lunch.”

Frog and Toad stayed on the island all afternoon. They ate wet sandwiches without iced tea. They were two close friends sitting alone together.
Dear Parent:
Your child’s love of reading starts here!

Every child learns to read in a different way and at his or her own speed. Some go back and forth between reading levels and read favorite books again and again. Others read through each level in order. You can help your young reader improve and become more confident by encouraging his or her own interests and abilities. From books your child reads with you to the first books he or she reads alone, there are I Can Read Books for every stage of reading:

SHARED READING
Basic language, word repetition, and whimsical illustrations, ideal for sharing with your emergent reader

BEGINNING READING
Short sentences, familiar words, and simple concepts for children eager to read on their own

READING WITH HELP
Engaging stories, longer sentences, and language play for developing readers
READING ALONE
Complex plots, challenging vocabulary, and high-interest topics for the independent reader

ADVANCED READING
Short paragraphs, chapters, and exciting themes for the perfect bridge to chapter books

I Can Read Books have introduced children to the joy of reading since 1957. Featuring award-winning authors and illustrators and a fabulous cast of beloved characters, I Can Read Books set the standard for beginning readers.

A lifetime of discovery begins with the magical words “I can read!”
